CARE INSTRUCTIONS

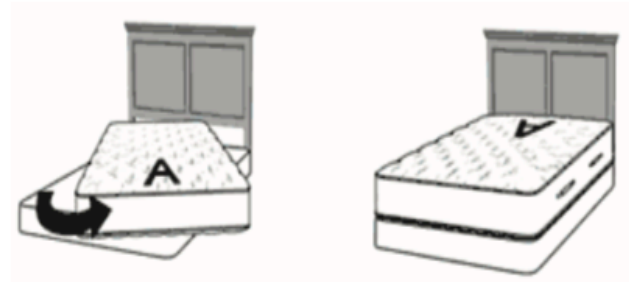

Your Oregon Mattress sleep set has been constructed with the finest resilient upholstery materials designed to conform to you, giving you ultimate comfort and support.

To prolong the life of your Oregon Mattress sleep set and be more satisfied with its overall performance, please remember the following points:

- 1) At some point, your new sleep set may reveal normal body impressions up to 1 ½ inch. This is normal and not a structural defect. The upholstery materials are conforming to the weight and shape of your body.
- 2) Do not bend the mattress. This could damage the innerspring unit. It should only be carried flat or on its side.
- 3) Use a mattress pad. This will protect your new set and help keep it clean.

Single-Sided Mattress Care:

This Mattress is manufactured with an exclusive new single-sided design and has one sleeping surface. This mattress has "Flip Free" upholstery padding which increases its longevity and support performance. Body indentations can be a normal occurrence in new mattresses, and indicate that the upholstery layers are conforming to a person's individual body contours. To help minimize body impressions, mattress should be rotated occasionally throughout their life. For convenience, we have illustrated below the best method. In addition, it is recommended that the two-sided mattresses be flipped as well as rotated to extend the life of the mattress.

- 1) Rotate mattress counter-clockwise
- 2) Realign mattress with foundation and turn 180 degrees.

PLEASE NOTE: Body Impressions are a normal feature of a mattress "break-in". This break-in can be accomplished in an even fashion by turning and rotating your new mattress every two weeks for the first 3 months, and every two to three months thereafter. Alternate rotation to head and foot positions each time you turn the mattress.

CAUTION

To avoid personal injury, do not attempt to lift or turn the mattress without assistance. Do not smoke in bed or expose your mattress to an open flame.

THANK YOU!
